Income and Employment Verification

It is the policy of The Ohio State University to protect the privacy of each employee.

Organizations who wish to verify the employment or income of a current or past Ohio State employee will use The Work Number®, an automated, external employment verification service selected by the university. Ohio State provides information to The Work Number at every payroll cycle to ensure that employment and income data available to authorized verifiers is current. This process results in the utmost privacy of your information while streamlining the transfer of that information to those who require it.

Employment and income verifications may be required when applying for a loan, buying a car, leasing an apartment, qualifying for a government benefit or similar instances where proof of employment or income is needed. In most cases, the employee provides the credit grantor (the verifier) with their consent to verify at the point of application, in the form of a signature (ink or digital) or other acknowledgement. Using that consent, the verifier can access The Work Number database and complete the verification instantly and securely.

All employment and income verification requests must use this automated service.

As an Ohio State employee, you can access and review the information made available to verifiers through the following:
